The Rhode Island Division of Fish and Wildlife is proud to release the 2025 – 2026 Waterfowl Conservation Stamp and is honored to utilize artwork from artist Sadie Ray. “My name is Sadie Ray and for almost 18 years I have been an avid enjoyer of nature. My appreciation for wildlife and animals has come from being surrounded by nature during my upbringing, in Exeter, Rhode Island. I have participated in the duck stamp contest at my school since I was a child and have continued to do so during my first three years of high school. Every year I have looked forward to the creation of my duck stamp as it is a combination of some of my greatest passions, nature and art”.

Over the years, the state has collected more than 1.2 million dollars in revenue from the sale of the stamps and from print royalties. The first project was the successful restoration of the 128-acre Galilee Salt Marsh. Revenue collected over a several-year period helped finance this important project completed in 1997. Since that time the Program has provided funds to purchase property in the South Shore Management Area in South Kingstown. This land provides goose hunting opportunities and a buffer from development. Funds have also enabled the purchase of property adjacent to the Seapower Marsh in Tiverton for waterfowl hunting and replacement of the water control structures for the Buck Hill Marsh and the Durfee Hill Marsh. Duck stamp funds were used to replace the water control structures and carry out wetland restoration projects at the Great Swamp Waterfowl Impoundment in South Kingstown and the Woody Hill Waterfowl Impoundment in Westerly during fall 2017.
