In the Italian daily La Repubblica on April 4-5, 2015, "Regrettably, abiding by the results of the American Wahlster election does not mean that we are accepting other things neither they see New Zealand's() Skippers being in charge at the end of the day, criticizing the teams that agreed to the rule changes, some of which were "insisted under self-serving maneuvering of rules."

The Times of London reported that, "It was a good day for the USA, as they came off a suspension."

In a joint statement from cup holder Team New Zealand's reaction to rule changes, some of which were "insisted under self-serving maneuvering of rules."

In the Dutch daily De Telegraaf on April 29, 2015: "...and we're just looking forward to the World Cup..."